Italian wines from Small Vineyards

friday. july 24 @ 7 pm

Periodically we have the opportunity to directly import wines from Italy through a company called Small Vineyards, based in Seattle. This company searches Italy for small, incredible quality producers who don't make enough wine to export on their own. Small Vineyards puts together a container of wine and imports it to the U.S. from all these producers, who would otherwise not have the resources to sell wine to our market. The happy result for us is, we get to try traditionally made wine from passionate winemakers whose family has, often times, owned the winery for generations. This is why we sell wine.
